

Abstract

The invention relates to a polypeptide, or part thereof, which inhibits the apoptotic activity of the tumour suppressor protein p53 and including screening 5 methods to identify agents which interfere with the activity of said polypeptide.